

Resources for Black History Month and Beyond

The Library of Congress website includes a myriad of digital materials regarding African American history and culture. There is content regarding pride and political activism; annual reports of charitable, educational, and political organizations; biographies, narratives, and speeches by members of Congress, among other documents. Such materials can be the subject of analyses and study across the disciplines, during Black History Month and beyond. Click below to link to the Library of Congress' free and open-source archives and materials.

<http://cdn.loc.gov/project/lcnet/BlackHistory/>

Photo citation information: (1899) Leigh Street Pharmacy, Richmond, Va. Richmond

Virginia, 1899. [?] [Photograph] Retrieved from the Library of Congress, <https://www.loc.gov/item/89716079/>.